

ROOSEVELT WAS TO BE ASSASSINATED

Plot Discovered In Portland That Had Doomed President To Death By Assas- sin Of The Anarchists

PLOT ACCIDENTLY DISCOVERED RECENTLY

Men Who Had Been Selected Merely Waited Funds To Take Them To Washington To Commit The Crime They Were Chosen For.

PORTLAND, ORE., JUNE 2.—BUT FOR THE ACCIDENTAL ARREST OF A POLE, WHO COMMITTED AN ASSAULT UPON SOME RUSSIANS, A PARTY OF RUSSIAN Nihilists MIGHT HAVE BEEN SENT TO WASHINGTON WITH THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF ASSASSINATING PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT. THIS IS THE STARTLING NEWS GIVEN OUT BY LOCAL DETECTIVES WHO HAVE BEEN WORKING UPON THE CASE, AND PUT FOR THE TIMELY ARREST OF THE POLE THE PLOT WOULD PROBABLY HAVE BEEN CARRIED OUT AS FAR AS THE SENDING OF THE CHOSEN MURDERERS TO WASHINGTON.

WERE MERELY WAITING FOR FUNDS

WHEN THE POLE WAS ARRESTED DETECTIVES WERE ASSIGNED TO THE CASE AND AFTER A CLOSE INVESTIGATION DISCOVERED THAT BEHIND THE SEEMING ASSAULT WAS A LARGE BAND OF RUSSIAN Nihilists WHO HAD Banded TOGETHER IN PORTLAND FOR THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF ASSASSINATING ROOSEVELT. THE MATTER HAD BEEN DELAYED OWING TO LACK OF FUNDS SUITABLE TO CARRY OUT THEIR PLANS AND AS SOON AS THIS WAS FORTHCOMING THE PARTY CHOSEN WOULD HAVE LEFT PORTLAND FOR WASHINGTON.

POLICE ARE READY FOR EMERGENCY

JUST HOW MUCH CREDENCE CAN BE GIVEN THE REPORT IS DOUBTFUL, BUT IT IS KNOWN THAT EXTRAORDINARY PRECAUTIONS HAVE BEEN TAKEN BOTH AT WASHINGTON AND IN THIS CITY TO PREVENT ANY OF THE SUSPECTED RUSSIANS FROM LEAVING PORTLAND OR REACHING WASHINGTON. THE DISCLOSURE HAS CAUSED CONSIDERABLE EXCITEMENT AMONG THE RUSSIAN COLONY.

NATIONS OF WORLD FAVOR ARBITRATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brussels, Belgium, June 2.—The executive council of the Interparliamentary Union met in Brussels today to decide upon the date and place for the next conference. The purpose of holding the conference is to formulate declarations in favor of limited compulsory arbitration, and the creation of a permanent international parliament, and by resolution refer both projects to the second peace conference at The Hague, which conference is to assemble next year. It is the belief of those now assembled here that the United States, England, Germany and France look with favor on the project to frame a convention providing for limited compulsory arbitration.

MIRACULOUS IMAGE IN GERMAN VILLAGE

Church Statue Is Said to Move and Look Sad at Times—Many People Making Pilgrimage.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

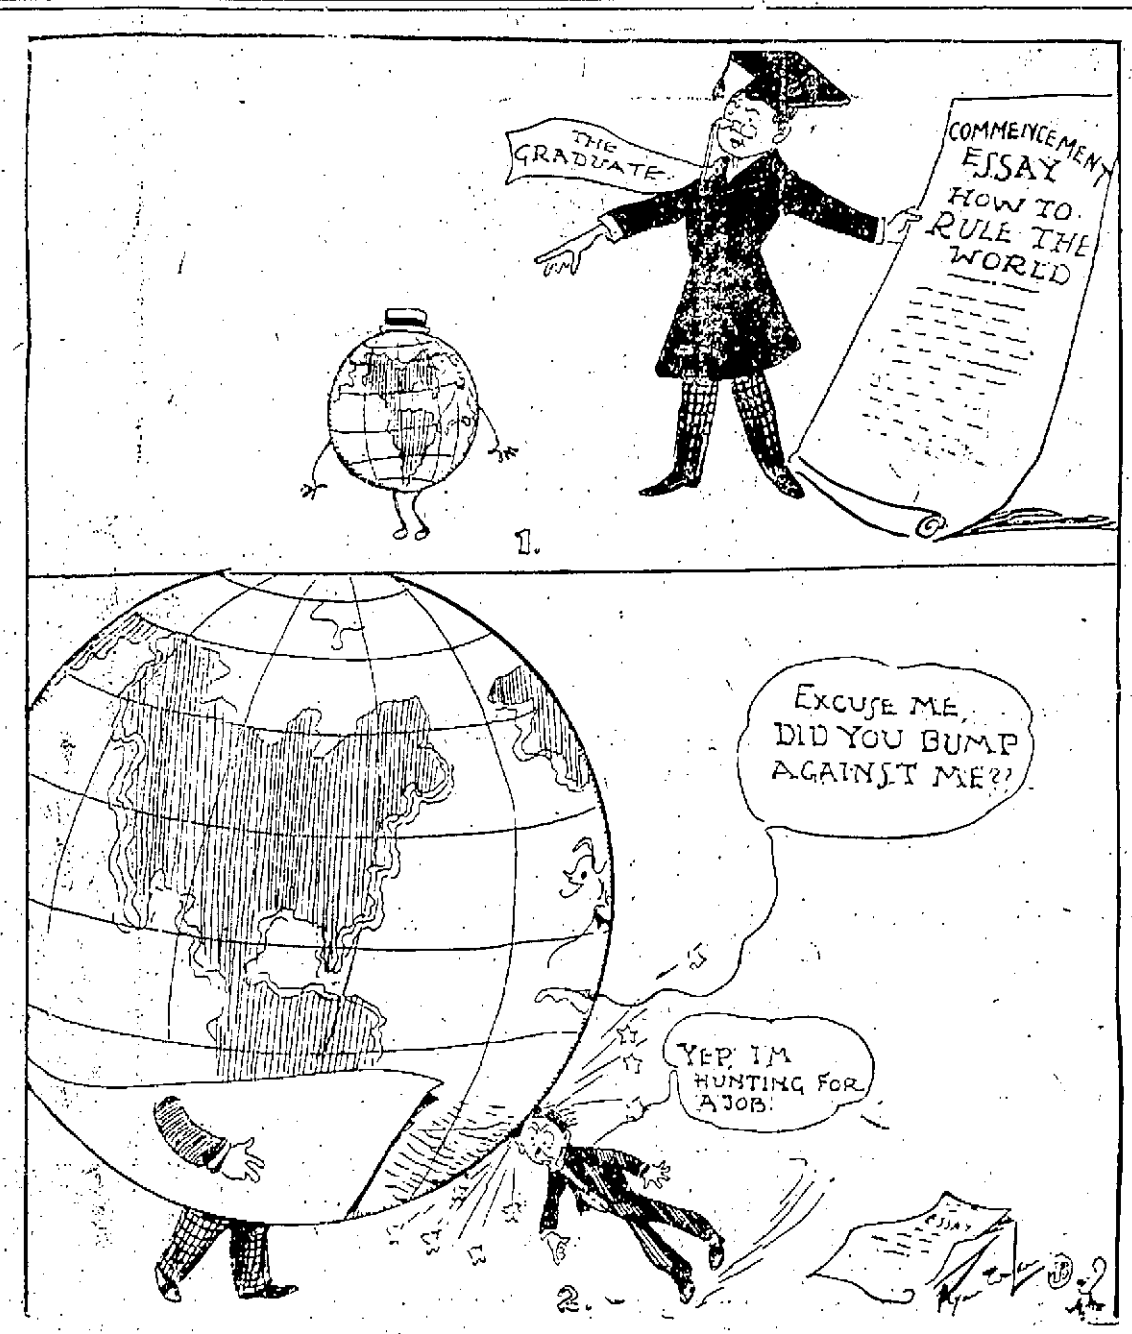

Berlin, Germany, June 2.—Dutch Peiklan, a small hamlet in Silesia, has suddenly acquired fame as a place of pilgrimage. The little village church contains a statue of St. Barbara, and now the report has got abroad that the image has been seen to move its head, the face assuming at the same time an expression of profound grief. The village priest explains, the supposed miracle by explaining that the face of the saint has been slightly damaged through an accident that happened to it when some faded wreaths were recently removed from its head, but his flock refuses to accept this simple explanation, and insist that a miracle has happened, with the consequence that the fame of the wonderful image has spread far and wide, and rustic visitors come long distances to gaze upon the saint's features and worship at her shrine.

VILLAGE OVER MINE BEING SWALLOWED

Burrows Have Been Too Near Surface and Houses Are Collapsing—Town Being Deserted.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Liege, Belgium, June 2.—According to geological experts, the picturesque old village of Glain, not far from this city, is doomed to disappear before long. Three coal mines, situated in the immediate neighborhood, have burrowed so closely to the surface that the earth crust has become too weak to support the houses. One night recently several cottages collapsed, the occupants narrowly escaping death. The inhabitants have been warned that the entire village is unsafe, and they are hurriedly clearing out of their homes.

WILL CONCENTRATE THE STATE GUARDS

Militias Invited to Go to Camp With Regulars—Reasons For Some "Regrets."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Assistant Secretary of War Oliver, who is in charge of the preparations for this summer's concentration maneuvers, is well pleased with the outlook. So far only ten states have declined the invitation to send some of their national guard organizations into camp with the regular troops. Colorado has declined because the guard is too much scattered about the state to admit of easy concentration. The approaching trials for murder of the labor leaders in Idaho have made it prudent for the authorities to retain the entire force of militia within the limits of the state. Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts have already planned to have their entire national guard go into large state camps, and have therefore declined the government's invitation. California reports that the experience of the state troops in guarding San Francisco and other places devastated by the earthquake and fire, and the expense to which the state has been put, makes it inexpedient to join in the campaign. South Dakota reports that the national guard is not equipped for a season in camp. Several other states have as yet failed to respond to the invitation, but the indications are that a large majority will take part in the maneuvers with the regular troops.

CAN UNCLE SAM SEND ARMED MEN?

Trouble In Sonora Is Very Perplexing To Government.

A MATTER OF LAW

Mexican Government In- vites Armed Men To Come To Aid In The Fighting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Douglas, Ariz., June 2.—Governor Ysabel, of the state of Sonora, arrived at Naco this morning, and immediately gave orders permitting all armed Americans to accompany him to Cananea. The Americans are organized under the command of Captain Tom Rynning, commander of the Arizona Rangers, and left with the governor on a special train for Cananea. There were four hundred and fifty in the party.

Two Americans Dead.

According to advices received from Cananea this morning, two Americans, George and Will Metcalf, and ten Mexicans and one child were killed there yesterday. A. S. Dwight, general manager of the Cananea Consolidated Company, was slightly wounded. The number of wounded is not known, but believed to be about twenty.

All Quiet Today.

Everything is quiet this morning. An armed party of thirty Americans tried to cross the line a half mile from Naco last night but were closed in on by Mexican officers. In the shooting which followed an American named Buchner, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at Bisbee, and a Mexican official were wounded.

Refugees Arrive.

Several hundred refugees arrived from Cananea on a special train last night. The excitement continues high in the border towns, but no trouble is anticipated.

At Washington.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The State Department has received a most urgent telegraphic appeal from the American consul Galbraith at Cananea, Mexico, and Governor Ysabel of the state of Sonora, Mexico, for help from the American side in the most extraordinary occurrence.

Have Conference.

The direct appeal was the subject of a hasty consultation between the Secretary of State, Chief Staff Brigadier-General Bell and a law officer of the war department inasmuch as a question of right of the United States to send troops into a friendly state is in doubt.

Making Ready.

Meanwhile officers of the general staff are making ready to execute any orders that may be issued.

Have Permission.

El Paso, Texas, June 2.—Private telegrams received from Cananea today says the Americans are now in control of the town and many Mexicans have left.

Orders Troops.

LONGWORTHS SAILED FOR EUROPE TODAY

Large Assemblage Bid "First" Bridal Pair of Land Godspeed—Spend Season in London.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, June 2.—More than the usual number of prominent society folk thronged the American line pier at the foot of Fulton street today to witness the departure of the steamship St. Louis. A large number of those present were there to bid Godspeed to Representative and Mrs. Longworth, who were among the passengers on the St. Louis. As the big steamship was pulled out of her berth into the North river the great crowd on the pier waved an enthusiastic adieu, while Mrs. Longworth, with her husband at her side, graciously acknowledged the salutations as long as the pier was in sight. Mr. and Mrs. Longworth plan to spend the "season" in London as guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and will later pay a visit to Mr. Longworth's sister, the Viscountess de Chabum, in Paris. In every country which they visit—and this will include most of the important nations of northern Europe—Mr. and Mrs. Longworth will be entertained by royalty, and it is thought inevitable that diplomatic significance will be attached to their doings. Although in the United States Mrs. Longworth is simply the wife of an Ohio congressman and holds no official position by virtue of being the daughter of the President, it already has been found vain to try to divert the minds of European diplomats of the thought that in a sense she represents the United States government.

Just before the Longworths sailed some excitement was caused on the pier by a drunken Italian declaring he was an anarchist and that he intended to throw a bomb at the Longworths. By the time a policeman could be found the Italian had disappeared.

Joseph Biggs, a well-known resident of Westfield, Ill., committed suicide by shooting.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

San Francisco as it lay destroyed by the terrible earthquake of April 18; the ruined city demolished by the terrible conflagration which followed; the heart-rending sufferings of the hundreds of thousands of homeless people after the beautiful California city was practically wiped from the face of the earth, are to be reproduced in truthful detail in Janesville at Myers Grand on Saturday, June 2, matinee and evening.

Modern pictures, one of the most useful inventions of modern times, are the means used in giving to the world an accurate idea of the catastrophe on the coast. The Frisco Motion Picture Company, which is exhibiting the views, destroyed by the quake, and skilled operators took the views all during the terrible scenes which followed in rapid succession after the initial shock.

The piercing eye of the camera has caught in nerve-thrilling detail many of the most heart-rending incidents which attended the California calamity, and the citizens of Janesville are congratulating themselves on the opportunity to see an accurate reproduction of the greatest catastrophe of modern times.

The poet, Young, said that "it is the wise man's interest to be seen—I find the fool when I behold the screen." No, he was not writing about advertising a store—but he might well have been.

BY THE WAY.
What church do you attend when the weather is too wet for golf or baseball?
What does it cost you to support the synagogue, and how much would it miss your contribution?

How would you like to live in a town that had no churches? Fortunately there are none this side the infernal regions.

What would you be worth in a year if the wealth of the country was evenly distributed?

What would a man do with $2,500 if he never had a clear title to 25 cents?

How much was you ever injured by a "grinding monopoly?"

When the government owns the railroads, and we all become stockholders, how many corner lots do you expect to buy with the dividends?

What's the difference between socialism and anarchy? One seeks to confiscate property by law, the other by force. No love lost in either case.

How would you make process butter with the pure food law in force? With oleomargarine, it is different. Not so many votes behind it.

What will the country do when congress adjourns? Take a much needed rest.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
Some years ago two gentlemen boarded an overland train in Chicago, bound for points on the Missouri river. It was a hot night in July and they were located in the rear Pullman. Shortly after the train started they went out to the smoking compartment and with door and windows open, lighted cigars, and prepared to make the most of a hot and disagreeable ride.

The car was in charge of a porter, and when the train conductor went through the train to pick up his tickets the two men were overlooked. Along towards midnight, when ready to retire, they said to the porter, "What has become of the conductor?" His answer was, "Why, didn't he see you?" They said "no," and then suggested that they would see him in the morning.

But the colored brother informed them that the train conductor left the train at the end of his run at four o'clock in the morning. Then the question of honesty demanded recognition, and the two men, who were comparative strangers to each other, discussed the problem of what they should do.

One of them argued that conductors were employed to take up tickets and protect the interests of the company, and if he neglected to do his work faithfully, the passengers were not responsible and suggested that corporations were soulless, and it was perfectly legitimate to beat them, whenever opportunity presented.

"But," the other replied, "we are getting the worth of our money in transportation and the company is entitled to pay. What you say in regard to soulless corporations is a popular notion, but it is not true, and while we may receive no thanks for being honest, it will be a source of personal satisfaction."

After more discussion, they went through the train, hunted up the conductor, turned in their mileage, for which they received a surprised "thank you," and retired with a clear conscience.

A week later they met by chance on an eastbound train for Chicago, returning by the same route over which they went out. At one o'clock in the morning they were awakened by a sudden shock, while the breaking of glass and cries for help, told the story of accident. The sleepers stayed on the track, but the cars ahead were in the ditch, as the result of a defective rail.

When the conductor discovered that no one was killed, or seriously injured, he came back to the rear sleeper and called for a couple of volunteers to walk back with him down the track, until he could find some landmark that would enable him to locate the train.

It was in the "wilds of Missouri, where train robberies were of frequent occurrence and stations were few and far between. The two conscientious passengers accompanied him, and half an hour later a road crossing satisfied the conductor that the nearest telegraph station was in the other direction.

When they returned to the train an operator had been discovered among the passengers and the click of a telegraph instrument told that the temporary office was in working order.

An hour later a wrecking train arrived and at nine o'clock in the morning the train was slowly backed up to the nearest eating station, several miles away, and the passengers permitted to pay for their meal.

At six o'clock in the afternoon the train crossed the Mississippi river, twelve hours late, with the same conductor in charge who went west with our honest passengers a week before. They were traveling on mileage and were a little short of enough to take them into the city, but the last nickle of fare was exacted and the "soulless" corporation man appeared to have the best of the argument.

This little incident has to do with conscience of the most sensitive sort. It is the heritage of a class of people who are said to be "over conscientious. People who are so honest that they are said to lean the wrong way. People who regard the rights of corporations as sacred as the rights of individuals.

The conception of honesty, as usually interpreted, eulogizes the man "whose word is as good as his bond," but in the limelight of the revolution now going on, in the moral world, this standard fails to meet the requirements.

The discovery is being made that conscience is not an infallible guide, and that while this priceless mentor, which is the God within us, always prompts to do the right, that judgment, developed and influenced by education and environment, decides, in every individual case, what the right and wrong is.

The men at the head of the great life insurance companies and corporations, now under investigation, have long enjoyed the reputation of being honest men. Their word was as good as their bond, and they met every requirement of the standard so long in force, and were fired with indignation when integrity was questioned.

The right to spend money for campaign purposes and to influence favorable legislation, was in the interests of the great army of policyholders, and their money, held in trust, was spent freely to protect these interests.

The question of conscience did not enter into the transaction at all. It was simply a question of judgment, reinforced by long established custom and practice. The Wall Street Journal states the case very tersely when it says:

"A tremendous moral revolution is taking place. Many practices which ten years ago, five years ago, one year ago, and even six months ago, were in favor, public opinion having no condemnation for them, are now held to be odious and even criminal."

This is perhaps the most notable development of the day, namely, the creation of a higher standard for the conduct of American business."

The public conscience, while a sort of intangible thing, is nevertheless a potent power for good, when thoroughly aroused. The right of others is a sacred right, which is too frequently overlooked or ignored, and these rights were never more prominently before the public than they are today.

A community is sometimes stirred and stimulated to a higher standard of morality as the result of a religious awakening, but the influence of such an arousment is seldom far reaching. The revolution, now going on in this country, is not essentially religious, as it has to do with the realm of morals, and the agitation, which is general in character, is largely due to the wholesome and widespread influence of President Roosevelt.

If any one imagines that Mr. Connor has any great love for Senator La Follette, the gray matter of his upper story needs a tonic. The two gentlemen may be on speaking terms but the vocabulary of thought indulged in wouldn't look well in cold type.

The Host-Houser case seems to be preparing for a coat of whitewash. This has been a popular method of disposing of alleged irregularities and while to be an American in this year ministration.

Governor Cummings of Iowa has invited Senator La Follette to come over and help redeem the state. Birds of a feather flock in the same park.

The Milwaukee Journal is still booming La Follette for the presidency on the democratic ticket.

Beloit Free Press: Madison will have no Fourth of July celebration this year, as the Ringlings' circus has chosen July third for its exhibition in that city, and a circus can knock out a Fourth of July every time in the Capital city.Salvationists In Appleton.
Appleton Post: It seems that the Salvation Army people have given up Oshkosh as a bad job. Appleton, not being so much of a Sodom or Gomorrah, presents to them a more inviting field, which they began to cultivate Thursday. It is to be hoped that its fertility will prove satisfactory.Former Minister Wu.
El Paso Herald: Wu, on the water wagon, dieting on cabbage and stewed vegetables, advocating the jury system and electrocution for China, and trying to convert the empress to true ingrowing goodness, shows that he doesn't mean to be forgotten even if he is 10,000 miles away.Same Complaint Here.
Madison Journal: Owners of launches on the lakes in and around Madison may be interested to know that lights are required by both city ordinance and federal statute. This announcement is made after repeated complaints in the form of communications and otherwise, have been received at this office regarding reckless "auto-boaters," from owners of rowboats and sailboats.La Follette's Style.
Springfield Republican: His (La Follette's) style is the very extreme of the barn-storming tragedians or the old fashioned eloquentists. He employs all the exaggerated tricks of varying the modulations of his voice, of long, impressive pauses, of appealing gestures; he even runs his fingers through his hair. He stalks up and down behind four desks with the heavy tread of a halting stevedore. If he should stalk clear across the senate chamber, one hand raised high above his head, and the other laid up on his heart, and hiss at Senator Aldrich, "M' em-r-r-r-s, on you," no one would be surprised. Playing the part of a wronged husband, in a theatre on the Bowery he would make a tremendous hit. In the United States senate it is a little different.Much Married Daughter Of Snell.
Marionette Eagle-Star: The daughter of Amos Snell of Chicago, has had a rather remarkable marital experience, but if names count for anything she should now live happily ever after. According to a story that is printed elsewhere, this young woman is married for the sixth time to a man by the name of Love, and is temporarily pleased with him. Mrs. Grace-Snell-Coffin, Walker-Layman-Love has tried six wedding ceremonies and been divorced five times. She occasionally remarries one of her former husbands but soon tires of them and tries another. Her father was killed in Chicago by a man named Tiscott. How fortunate or unfortunate it was that the girl was not killed instead of her father, could best be told by her ex-husbands. But they are busy looking up other wives and won't tell.The Talbot Fire Fighters.

YOUTHFUL ATHLETES
HOLD A DUAL MEETHigh School Versus the Monroe High School at the Fair Grounds.

At the Fair Grounds this afternoon is being held a track meet between a team composed of the local high school athletes and a team from Monroe. Renewed vigor seems to have taken place this year in track athletics and it the boys can make the meet a financial success today the good work will probably start out with a flourish next year, for but few of the best athletes will leave with the Senior Class at the closing of school. The team from Monroe are confident that they can put up a good fight for the honors and the same feeling exists in the local team. The boys were around among the business men this morning selling tickets and doing all they could for the interest of the school athletics and a large number of people are witnessing the meet this afternoon. About twenty visitors accompanied the team, which was composed of eleven athletes. They arrived on the 10:20 this morning and most of them will return on the 7 o'clock train this evening.

He Was Killed.

In fact, that he never drank. The remains were brought here for burial at five-forty-five yesterday afternoon accompanied by a party of Chicago friends, who acted as pallbearers. Several of these were with him at the time of his death. Among those who came up from Chicago were Messrs. Cooley, Riley, Leahy, Hogan, and Hasner, and his brother, Philip Carroll. The remains were interred at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

The large expense attached to the handling of business from a store is entirely done away with and the saving is the purchaser's gain.

Just let me know when you are in the market for a Piano and I will do the rest. It is so easy to buy a Piano when you start right. I make a specialty of selling good Pianos—those that stay in tune long and are made as near perfect as it is possible to make them; those that have beautiful tone quality and the best action made in America. This is the kind of a Piano you should buy; then you will be happy as far as the piano trouble goes. I guarantee satisfaction or no sale. The Pianos that I would call your special attention to are as follows:

NEWMAN BROS. PIANO, manufactured in Chicago.
LESTER PIANO, manufactured at Lester, Pa.
HARDMAN PIANO, manufactured at New York, N. Y.

These noted Pianos are all strictly high grade and only the very best materials throughout are used in their construction—which insures durability, also produces an even and superior quality of tone. These Pianos are selected from the many so-called high grade pianos on account of their great durability and beautiful tone. I say it is easy to buy a piano if you start right. A child can buy a good Piano from this list and make no mistake. All of these three different named Pianos are well known in the city and in the state—yes, all over the United States. Of late 24 Lester Upright Pianos and one Parlor Grand were sold and shipped to the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston, Mass. This surely speaks well of the Lester. There are more Lester Pianos sold in Philadelphia than all other makes combined. The Lester is made in one grade only and that the highest; lasts a lifetime.

The same can be said of the other Pianos. Send for a Catalogue, ask me to call and talk over the Piano matter with you. Remember this, now and forever, that I sell the best Piano that money can buy. My prices are low. Call up New Phone 775, or send me a postal card asking me to call. Of late I have sold Pianos in Appleton, Fond du Lac, Beloit, Janesville, and am ready to go anywhere in the state.

CONGRESS WANTS TO ADJOURN SOON

POLITICAL FENCES MUST BE ATTENDED TO NOW.

MEMBERS SEEK REELECTION

Real Work of Present Session Will Soon Be Completed.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Now that the senate has disposed of the much-mooted ratification problem, the members of the National Legislature are looking forward to an early adjournment of the present session of congress. With the rate bill out of the way, the decks are practically cleared and with a little hurry on the part of congress, the session should close in at least a month. There is nothing now to do but to clean up odds and ends of legislation and dispose of the appropriation bills, which the senate can do in quick time if it so desires for only this week it passed the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill in a single day's session of five hours duration, to say nothing of about five hundred pension bills in the same day. The Philippine bill is practically dead for the present session and statehood legislation is at a standstill owing to the inability of the conferees of the Senate and House to meet on a common ground of agreement. There is talk of adding this legislation to an appropriation bill in the nature of a rider, making Indian Territory and Oklahoma one state, and in that way dispose of the matter. It is the general opinion that there will be no legislation affecting the construction of the Panama Canal enacted by congress this session. It will thus be seen that congress, if it desired, could adjourn within at least a month from now. Speaker Cannon, however, thinks congress will sit until sometime after the 4th of July. The other day a number of members who were anxious to orate on the 4th of July before their constituents sought the Speaker's opinion as to whether they would be able to count on congress getting away by that time or not. It is reported that Mr. Cannon told them they could as well deliver themselves of their orations in the House of Representatives as well as any place, thus leaving the impression that congress will sit until after July 4. There are, however, a number of senators who believe that an adjournment will be had at least two weeks before the 4th of July. Among these may be mentioned Senator Fulton, of Oregon, who says it is his belief that congress will close the present session on or about the 20th of June. Said Senator Fulton: "Unless we get tied up in a canal discussion we will get through about June 20. There is, however, no telling what length the discussion of the canal will be. The canal committee may say 'If legislation on the canal question is enacted at this session, congress will not adjourn until some time in July. I hardly think though that there will be any canal legislation at the present session.'"

"The United States Government Printing Office is the finest establishment of the kind in the world." This is the statement of Mr. Charles W. Pafflow, a proofreader at the government printing office in this city, based on observations he has made in the principal countries of Europe, in Canada, Mexico, South America, Australia and Japan. The English government, he says, is slow in making changes, the public printer letting its work out to private contractors, Messrs. Byre & Spottiswoode being the principal ones. In 1905 the printing done for the English government cost over four million dollars. The British colonies have their own printing plants and do their own work. Canada having given up the contract system in 1889. The Canadian office favors unionism outright, stipulating that no workman can enter unless he is a member of the union of his trade. Since the establishment of its plants, says Mr. Pafflow, Canada has saved over $400,000 in its print bill. Australia also has its own plant. France has been doing its own printing since 1858, and is said to possess 2300 different faces of type. The French claim their establishment is the best equipped in the world. It is said that as Pope Pius VII. passed each of the 150 presses in the French printing office on a visit a hundred years ago, they printed a pater noster in a different language. Altogether, there were used on this occasion 75 European, 48 Asiatic and 12 African languages. The French establishment employs about 1300 compositors and its expenses for the year 1903 amounted to seven and a half million francs.

The printing office of Germany employs 1500 persons and has been running since 1571. The employees serve under civil service rules similar to those in the United States. After ten years of service the employees receive, if invalided, a regular pension. In 1904, $450,000 marks was appropriated for running the German plant, of which $225,000 was for labor. It operates its own type foundry, turning out fifty thousand pounds of type annually. The government printing office of Austria was established in 1504, burned in 1884 and a seven-story structure erected in 1891 in its place. It cost two million florins and employs over 1000 persons. In general appearance it greatly resembles the printing office in Washington. The employees of the Austrian office are also pensioned and receive sick benefits the same as the Germans. Russia has a printing office in St. Petersburg doing both government and private printing, employing about 500 people and running at an annual expense of 350,000 rubles. There are also printing offices in the provinces operated by the central government.

Portugal belongs the honor of having the best equipped printing office in Europe. It does all the government printing and also private work, and not only pays its working expenses but contributes a large sum of the national treasury. After fifteen years of service, its employees receive a pension if incapacitated for labor, of one half average pay, progressing annually with two per cent until after forty years of service when they can claim full pay. The total receipts for the year 1903 amounted to 230,000,000 reis, and the expenses to 225,000,000 reis. Switzerland has no printing plant, but spends about $150,000 a year for its public printing. Italy, Spain, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Sweden all let their printing out at private contract.

STARTS A SUIT TO RECOVER LARGE SUM

Badger Telegraph & Telephone Company Is Sued for Five Thousand Dollars.

Edward E. Sipperry of Milwaukee has sued the Badger Telegraph & Telephone company, alleging that it is indebted to him in the sum of $5,000 for services as general manager. All the local independent exchanges in this part of the state, including the Rock County Telephone company, have been garnished. The money belonging to the defendant in the German-American bank of Milwaukee has also been tied up. It seems that on the first of November, 1902, Mr. Sipperry and the Badger-Telegraph & Telephone company entered into an agreement by which Mr. Sipperry was to act as its general manager and devote so much of his time to the business of the company as might be necessary to properly conduct its affairs as a toll line. He was to receive therefor one-half of the amount which he should save over the operating expenses at that time, and 10 per cent of the increased business. The parties worked under this agreement until November 1, 1905. At that time an attempt to reach a settlement was made. Mr. Sipperry claimed that the company was indebted to him in the sum of approximately $5,000, while the officers of the company claimed that he was indebted to it something over $1,700. The Badger Telegraph & Telephone company was organized in the city of Evansville, this county, and many residents of this vicinity formerly owned stock in it. It is now owned and controlled by Milwaukee men. It owns all the independent toll lines in this vicinity. Thos. S. Nolan of this city is the attorney for Mr. Sipperry and ex-Judge Frank M. Fish of Milwaukee represents the defendant.

Camp to Explain New Rules

Yale Football Authority to Meet Officials in Various Parts of Country to Interpret the Technicalities of Recent Gridiron Legislation.

That Walter Camp, the Yale football authority, has not lost one iota of his former prominence in connection with the game of football was brought out at a meeting of the central board of officials of the American intercollegiate football rules committee recently, the details of which were announced by the chairman of the board, Dr. James A. Habbitt of Haverford, Pa. In the course of a long discussion on the question of bringing about a uniform interpretation of the new football rules it was suggested that Camp be sent to the various local committees, and the plan was adopted. Camp in fact showed all through the talk that he was most fit to handle the interpretation of the rules, and for this reason the work was turned over to him.

The first suggestion of Camp's command of the rules of the game came when E. H. Hall of Dartmouth, also a member of the rules committee, made a report on steps taken to organize a local subcommittee on officials in the New England states. Hall said the committee was in process of formation and that five of the leading New England colleges would be represented. The central board decided that Hall, in conference with Camp, should form the New England committee.

Then, the board discussed the advisability of conferences at various places to interpret the rules. A motion was made requesting that Camp should meet the subcommittees in the various localities and wherever they may desire to include in their conferences at some time prior to the termination of the present college year. At some date before Oct. 1 a general conference will be called in New York city, at which the full rules committee will be present.

WALTER CAMP OF YALE.

To form a subcommittee in the middle west it was decided to communicate with the representatives of the conference colleges to recommend that such a committee be appointed. The names of Professor Waldo of Purdue university, Haverford of Chicago university, Adams of Wisconsin and Jameson of Michigan were suggested, with Professor Waldo as chairman. The nucleus of the subcommittee of the middle Atlantic consists of Professor J. B. Fine, Princeton, a member of the central board; John H. Milnes of Pennsylvania and J. A. Habbitt, representing the Pennsylvania colleges.

The central board does not want to do more than take action on officials, but has suggested that the subcommittees make plans for supporting positively the action of officials on the field, prepare at once a list of accredited officials and make plans first for local and then general conferences on the interpretation of the new rules. Letters will be sent to all prominent football officials to obtain suggestions and to get their co-operation.

New Pitcher for Champions Looks Good to the Experts.

Henry Mathewson, or Matty 2d, the new pitcher of the New York Nationals, is a second edition of his noted brother Christy in many ways. Marked off in this particular is his earnestness while at practice. His works just as hard and appears just as anxious as if he were in the box in a championship game.

His pitching wing is wonderfully muscled, and he can put them over the plate like chain lightning.

He holds his position like a veteran, and judging from Clete Sam Crane's account of his practice stunts he will hold his own in the fast gut the Giants are sure to set.

Ball Managers.

They Have Standards of Build, Etc., by Which Candidates Are Judged.

Star baseball players come in all kinds of packages and shapes, but that does not hinder most of the managers from having ideals as to the kind of men they would rather have for certain positions. No manager will turn a player down because of his size or build; but, on the other hand, one who does not conform to certain specifications will have more trouble getting a trial than one who does. Managers continually pass youngsters up because they do not come up to what is expected in size and build.

Generally speaking, managers are pretty near a unit in demanding at least average size in players and requiring exceptional merit where this is lacking. True it is that some of the best men in baseball today are underdogs, Willie Keeler and Miller Huggins being the most shining examples of this; but, on the other hand, a half a hundred men of more size will succeed where one does who is below the average. Some managers run to extremes, as Armour of Detroit, who wants nothing but big men if he can get them, while others are more liberal and make allowances for the different classes of work required in different positions. Broadly speaking, they, as a rule, prefer size in the outfield, on first base and in the pitching staff. For the three infielders outside of first base big men are not so much wanted. Behind the bat size is also not as much in demand as it used to be.

Both St. Louis managers have their ideals and they are not the same by considerable. McAleer's present American league team represents his ideal more closely than any he has had up to date, while McCloskey of the Nationals would have a considerably changed lineup if he could alter things in his regard to the infield and the catching department, while as regards outfielders and pitchers they are well agreed.

As McAleer has been in charge of his team long enough to work out a line along his own plans, it is natural that his team should reflect his ideal. McAleer wants men rather above the average than below it, in the outfield, and on his pitching staff, though he is not an extremist in either case. He likes big fellows like Fred Glade and Jack Powell as pitchers, as he figures that husky built men can pitch better than ball and stand the strain better than lighter ones. Such men as Howell and Sudhoff cannot be classed as being against this rule, as both are big little men, owing to their fine muscular development. Behind the bat the Brown manager likes men of medium build and height, or inclined to the heavy side of the scale. He thinks a heavier man has a better chance to handle fast pitching without being unbalanced, and as a consequence is better equipped to make accurate throws to the bases. Riekey is hardly McAleer's ideal in the way of build, as he is not quite heavy enough, but at that the Brown manager thinks as much of his new man as he does of Spencer, who is built along soldier lines.

McCloskey has different ideas in regard to both the infield and catching department than McAleer. In the infield McCloskey inclines toward more husky built chaps, who can make up for some deficiency in fielding by hitting in runs. He likes rather stout built infielders of medium height, as he figures they are more likely to prove hard hitters and be able to stand more roughing on the bases. Behind the bat McCloskey likes heavy built men, Holmes being pretty close to his ideal in this respect. He figures that a tall chap can get away from the batsman better and put the ball down to second in a greater hurry and in better shape.

Le pitchers McCloskey is somewhat of an extremist, as he likes big men, and the bigger the better. He contends that light men may do all right early in the season, but that they are more than likely to wilt during the heat of the campaign. Big men as a rule improve as the season grows older and are in shape to make a good finish when the race is drawing to a close. McCloskey also likes left handers, as he figures that a chance from left to right hand pitchers, or the reverse, is an effective one when a twister is being hit.

To Punish Baseball Managers

Officials and Owners Who Combine to "Cover Up" Minor League Players Will Be Penalized. Willie Keeler's Sensational Bunt Hitting.

The movement announced by the National commission for the future punishment of baseball managers and owners who engage in the practice of "covering up" players probably will meet the approval of all the major leagues and some of the minors. This practice consists of an agreement between the managers of a minor league club and a major league club whereby the latter ostensibly purchases certain players whom he knows he will not need, but whom the minor club wants to retain. This is done in advance of the drafting season and exempts such players from being drafted.

Before the following season these players are sold back to the minor club for the same price that was paid for them, thereby working a hardship on the players.

This hardship is more marked in the case of players "covered up" for the smaller clubs of the minor leagues than in the case of "Class A" clubs, because it is necessary to secure the consent of the other major league clubs before a player can be turned back to the minor leagues, and a player of major league caliber is likely to be claimed by some other club. But when a player in a small league is "covered up" it is likely to prevent his being advanced to a minor league of higher class.

The practice is general, but not always voluntary on the part of the major league clubs which are guilty of evading the law in this way. Sometimes a club owner is compelled to "cover up" players in order to secure favorable training grounds; sometimes it is done to create friendly relations with a minor club and secure reliable tips on good material in other clubs of the same league suitable for future purchase or draft.

The bunting sensation of the year to date is "Wee Willie" Keeler, the right fielder of the New York Americans. Keeler has long been known as a scientific batsman, but this year he is outstripping all previous efforts, particularly in clever bunting.

Keeler's ability to lay exasperating bunt hits just where the infielders can't reach them is sensational. As a rule his bunts roll along the third base line within a few inches of being foul. But those few inches are enough to worry the very life out of opposing pitchers, catchers, shortstops and third basemen.

There are heavier sluggers than Willie Keeler, but it is doubtful if there is a more scientific batsman living. "Keeler," says Charley Nichols, the veteran pitcher, "is the hardest man to foul I ever faced. He keeps a pitcher guessing all the time. He may bunt, place the bat just over the outfielder's head or send it on a long line drive down the field." Since 1893 Keeler has been batting above .300, and that is going some. He is a left hand hitter and cradles above the plate with the bat grasped well upon the handle. He is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 150 pounds.

Keeler is one of the best bunters in the business. "There are only two occasions when to bunt," he says, "when you want to advance a man from first to second or second to third, or when there are no men on the bases." Keeler doesn't believe in the play often tried by many teams of bunting a man in from third. He advises batsmen to act as indifferently as possible when they approach the plate.

THE LINQUIST'S PARADISE. People Who Can Not Speak English Have Their Own Troubles in New York.

"A man who cannot speak English is at a great disadvantage in a city like New York, especially if he wants to find his way about the city," said an old street car conductor, relates the World. "He cannot make himself understood and he seems to mistrust the motives of every one. To argue with him is absolutely useless. If you start to be will delay your car and create a disturbance. The only thing for us to do is to get rid of him in the easiest way we can and that is where we display intelligence."

For example, a foreigner—a Greek, I think he was—got on my Madison avenue car one day and wanted to transfer at Thirty-fourth street. Transfers are given by a man who stands on the street corner there, and I told the man to get his transfer on the street, but he couldn't understand what I meant. He waited until the car had passed his street and then demanded a transfer. I couldn't give him one that would do him any good, and so told him, but he immediately got excited. I saw an argument coming, so I stopped the car and handed him a transfer. It would do him no good. I knew, but he took it, perfectly satisfied, and left the car. How he made out afterward I don't know, but I avoided trouble and my car went ahead without delay."

COWS THAT STEAL MILK. Must Be Muzzled to Prevent Depredations on the Milkers of the Herd.

The cow wore around her muzzle a ring, or collar, of spikes. "What's them there spikes for, farmer?" asked the city man. "I'll show you, sir," returned the farmer, smiling. And he took off the spiked collar and the cow returned to the herd. She returned to the herd, and instantly she knelt beside a fine Jersey and, turning up her face, she began to drink the Jersey's milk like a calf.

"Wall," said the city man, "I'll be gosh darned."

"She is a milk stealer," said the farmer. "If she didn't wear her spiked ring she would steal a couple of gallons of milk a day. But with the ring on, you see, she can't play her nefarious trade. As soon as she makes the attempt on a cow the spikes stick the animal's side, and with a grunt of pain it moves off.

"Calves that will never let themselves be weaned grow up into milk stealers. They do the farmers' milking for him and grow fat. But when he learns of their vice he puts a spiked ring around their muzzles, and then their life of crime comes to an end."

THE INTELLECTUAL DRINKS. The Beverages Which Stimulate the Brain Are Non-Alcoholic.

"Tea and coffee are drugs—drugs solely," said a chemist. "They stimulate the brain, and the reaction from this stimulation is not perceptible. Hence tea and coffee are excellent brain spurts. For a little while they do, actually, make us more intelligent than we naturally are. That is why they are so popular. It is why we chemists call them intellectual drinks."

"Alcohol, whether it be taken in the form of champagne or beer or whisky, is not an intellectual drink, but the opposite. From the beginning alcohol stupefies instead of enlivening the brain. But it makes us talk! If we were not enlivening, how should it make us talk? Alas, alcohol makes us talk, but we say under its influence the things we should not. Alcohol deadens the inhibitory, the prohibitory centers of the brain. It stupefies the brain muscle which knows what things should not be told. And hence, while drinking we talk, but oh, the things we say, and oh, how we blush in the cold gray light of the morning after to remember what we said."

NICANOR TELLER OF TALES

"This was what he loved,—to fare forth at night and come upon some group about the fire; to begin his chant abruptly, in the midst of conversation; to see his listeners draw close and closer, gazing wide-eyed, half in awe; to sway them as the marsh winds sway the reeds. At times, when his sense of power shook him, he took a savage delight in seeing them turn, one to another,—simple-hearted children of moor and forest, whose emotions he could mould as a potter moulds his clay."

AND if you are a lover of old romance you will want to follow the adventures of Nicanor the story-teller, of the lord's daughter who forgot that he was a slave, and of Eldris, who loved him best. It is a novel for those of us who have not forgotten Scott and Kingsley and the nobler traditions of historical romance. It is especially commended to anyone who would like to forget for a time the hard commercial age in which we live.

"NICANOR, TELLER OF TALES," is a tale of Roman Britain, by C. Bryson Taylor, with beautiful illustrations in full color and other decorations by the Kinneys. It is just published, and your bookseller has it today.

CHAPTER XIX.

WHEN Hassan was dead, at a sign from Saladin a captain of the mamlukes named Abdullah fastened the jewel from the turban and handed it to Wulf. It was a glorious star-shaped thing, made of great emeralds set around with diamonds, and the captain looked at it greedily and muttered:

"Alas, that an unbeliever should wear the enchanted star, the ancient luck of the house of Hassan!" a saying that Wulf remembered.

He took the jewel, then turned to Saladin and said:

"Have I your peace, sultan, after such a deed?"

"Whoever dies, you are safe," said Saladin. "There is but one sin which I will not pardon you—you know what it is," and he looked at them. "As for Hassan, he was my beloved friend and servant, but you slew him in fair fight, and his soul is now in paradise."

Then dismissing the matter with a wave of his hand, he turned to receive a great body of Christian prisoners that, panting and stumbling like over-driven sheep, were being thrust on toward the camp.

Among them the brethren rejoiced to see Ebert; also, wounded in many places, there was the black-browed master of the Templars, who even now could be fierce and insolent.

"So I was right," he mocked in a husky voice, "and here you are, safe with your friends the Saracens, Sir Knights of the visions."

"All the vision is not done," said Godwin sadly, and, turning, he looked toward a blazing tent which with the sultan's great pavilion, and not far behind it, was being pitched by the Arab camp followers. The master saw and remembered Godwin's vision of the dead Templars.

"Is it there that you mean to murder me, traitor and wizard?" he asked.

Then rage took hold of Godwin, and he answered him:

"Were it not for your plight, here and now I would thrust those words down your throat, as should we both live, I yet shall hope to do. You call us traitors. Is it the work of traitors to have charged alone through all this host until our horses died beneath us?—he pointed to where Smoke and Flame lay with glazing eyes—to have unhorsed Saladin and to have slain this prince in single combat? And he turned to the body of the emir Hassan. "You speak of me as wizard and murderer," he went on, "because some angel brought me a vision which, had you believed it, Templar, would have saved tens of thousands from a bloody death, the Christian kingdom from destruction and yonder holy thing from mockery." And, with a shudder, he glanced at the road, which its captives had set up upon a rock not far away with a dead knight tied to its black arms. "You, Sir Templar, are the murderer who by your madness and ambition have brought ruin on the cause of Christ."

Then Saracen guards dragged the Templar away, and they were parted. By now the pavilion was up, and Saladin entered it, saying:

"Bring before me the king of the Franks and Prince Arnat, he who is called Reginald of Chastillon."

Then a thought struck him, and he called to Godwin and Wulf, saying:

"Sir Knights, you know our tongue. Give up your swords to the officers—they shall be returned to you—and come, be my interpreters."

So the brethren followed him into the tent, where presently were brought the wretched king and the gray-haired Reginald de Chastillon, and with them a few other great knights who, even in the midst of their misery, stared at Godwin and Wulf in wonderment. Saladin read the look and explained their presence should be understood:

"King and nobles, be not mistaken. These knights are my prisoners, as you are, and none have shown themselves braver today or done me and mine more damage. Indeed, had it not been for my guards, within the hour I should have fallen beneath the sword of Sir Godwin. But as they know Arabic, I have asked them to render my words into your tongue. Do you accept them as interpreters? If not, others must be found."

When they had translated this, the king said that he accepted them.

The sultan bade his captains be seated and, seeing their terrible thirst, commanded slaves to bring a great bowl of sherbet made of rose water cooled with snow, and with his own hand gave it to King Guy. He drank in great gulps, then passed the bowl to Reginald de Chastillon, whereon Saladin cried out to Godwin:

"Say to the king it is he and not I who gives this man to drink. There is no bond of salt between me and the Prince Arnat."

Godwin translated, sorrowfully enough, and Reginald, who knew the habits of the Saracens, answered:

"No need to explain, Sir Knight. Those words are my death warrant. Well, I never expected less."

Then Saladin spoke again.

"Prince Arnat, you strive to take the holy city of Mecca and to desecrate the tomb of the prophet, and then I swore to kill you. Again, when in a time of peace a caravan came from Egypt and passed by Esh-Shobek, where you were, forgetting your oath, you fell upon them and slew them. Then for the second time I swore to kill you. Yet I gave you one more chance. Will you subscribe the Koran and embrace the faith of Islam or will you die?"

Now the lips of Reginald turned pale, and for a moment he swayed upon his seat. Then his courage came back to him, and he answered in a strong voice:

"Sultan, I will have none of your mercy at such a price, nor do I bow the knee to your dog of a false prophet."

Saladin sprang to his feet, his very beard bristling with wrath, and, drawing his saber, shouted aloud:

"You scorn Mohammed! Behold! I average Mohammed upon you! Take him away!" and he struck him with the flat of his scimitar.

"Then" mamlukes leaped upon the prince, dragging him to the entrance of the tent they forced him to his knees and there beheaded him.

In the midst that followed this terrible deed King Guy said to Godwin:

"Ask the sultan if it is my turn next."

"Nay," answered Saladin. "Kings do not kill kings, but that truce breaker has met with no more than his deserts."

Then came a scene still more dreadful. Saladin went to the door of his tent and, standing over the body of Reginald, bade them parade the captive Templars and Hospitallers before him.

"These also are faith breakers," he shouted, "and of their unclean tribes will I rid the world. Ho, my emirs and doctors of the law!—and he turned to the great crowd of his captains about him—"take each of you one of them and kill him!"

Now the emirs hung back, for, though fanatics, they were brave and loved not this slaughter of defenseless men, and even the mamlukes murmured aloud.

But Saladin cried again:

"They are worthy of death, and he who disobeys my command shall himself be slain."

"Sultan," said Godwin, "we cannot witness such a crime. We ask that we may die with them."

"Nay," he answered; "you have eaten of my salt, and to kill you would be murder. Get you to the tent of the Princess of Baalbek yonder, for there you will see nothing of the death of these Franks, your fellow worshippers."

So the brethren turned and, led by a mamluke, fled against the first time in their lives past the long lines of Templars and Hospitallers, who in the last red light of the dying day knelt upon the sand and prayed, while the emirs came up to kill them.

They entered the tent, none forbidding them, and at the end of it saw two women crouched together on some cushions, who arose, clinging to each other. Then the women saw also and sprang forward with a cry of joy, saying:

"So you live—you live!"

"Aye, Rosamund," answered Godwin, "to see this shame—would God that we did not—while others die. They murder the knights of the holy orders."

To your knees and pray for their passing souls."

So they knelt down and prayed, till the traitor died away, and they knew that all was done.

Rosamund had little to tell, except that she had been well-treated and always kept by the person of the sultan, marching to and fro with his army, for he awaited the fulfillment of his dream concerning her. Then they told her all that had happened to them; also of the vision of Godwin and his dreadful accomplishment and of the death of Hassan beneath the sword of Wulf. At that story Rosamund wept and shrank from him a little, for though it was this prince who had stolen her from her home she loved Hassan. Yet when Wulf said humbly: "The fault is not mine; it was so fated. Would that I had died instead of this Saracen!" Rosamund answered: "No, no. I am proud that you should have conquered."

But Wulf shook his head and said:

"I am not proud. Although, weary with that awful battle, I was still the younger and stronger man, though at first he well might mastered me by his skill and quickness. At least we parted friends. Look, he gave me this, and he showed her the great emerald badge which the dying prince had given him."

"Do you know," asked Rosamund, "that this jewel is very famous, not only for its value, but because, it is said to have belonged to one of the children of the prophet, and to bring good fortune to its owner? There is scarce a soldier in the sultan's army who would not give all he has for yonder trinket, which is known throughout the land as the star of Hassan. So beware, Sir Wulf, lest you have eaten the fruit of Saladin's sin."

"I remember the captain Abdullah looking at it greedily and lamenting that the luck of the house of Hassan should pass to an unbeliever," said Wulf. "Well, enough of this jewel and its dangers; I think Godwin has words to say."

"Yes," said Godwin. "We are here in your tent through the kindness of Saladin, who did not wish us to witness the death of our comrades, but tomorrow we shall be separated again. Now, if you are to escape?"

"I will escape! I must escape, even if I am recaptured and die for it," broke in Rosamund passionately.

"Speak low," said Rosamund. "I saw the sultan's messenger pass the door of the tent, and he is a spy—they all are spies."

Suddenly a shadow fell upon them. It was that of the head emir, Al-Farrukh, a fat, cunning-faced man, with a cunning smile. Low he bowed before them, saying:

"Your pardon, O princess. A messenger has come from Saladin, demanding the presence of these knights at the banquet that he has made ready for his noble prisoners."

"We obey," said Godwin, and, rising, they bowed to Rosamund and to Masouda, then turned to go, leaving the star jewel where they had been seated.

Very skillfully Mesour covered it with a fold of his robe and under shelter of the fold slipped down his hand and grasped it, not knowing that, although she seemed to be turned away, Masouda was watching him out of the corner of her eye. Waiting till the brethren reached the tent door, she called out:

"Sir Wulf, are you already weary of the enchanted star of fortune, or would you bequeath it to us?"

"Now Wulf came back, saying heavily:

"I forgot the thing. Who would not at such a time? Where is it? I left it on the cushion."

"Try the hand of Mesour," said Masouda, whereat with a very crooked smile the emir produced it and said:

"I wished to show you, Sir Knight, that you must be careful with such gems as these, especially in a camp where there are many dishonest persons."

The emir produced the gem.

"I thank you," answered Wulf as he took it. "You have shown me." Then, followed by the sound of Masouda's mocking laughter, they left the tent.

Of all the strange feasts that they ever ate, the brethren found this the strangest, and the most sad. Saladin was seated at the head of the table with guards and officers standing behind him. Not far from him sat the king of Jerusalem and his brother and all down the board great captive nobles, to the number of fifty or more.

Sorcery spectacles were these, gulfed knights in their levin and blood stained armor, pale faced, too, with eyes set wide in horror at the dread deeds they had just seen done. Yet they ate, and ate ravenously, for now that their thirst was satisfied they were mad with hunger. Thirty thousand Christians lay dead on the horn and plain of Hattin; the kingdom of Jerusalem was destroyed and his king a prisoner. The holy road was taken as a trophy. Doomed, shamed, bereaved—yet they ate, and, being human, could take comfort from the thought that having eaten, by the law of the Arabs, at least their lives were safe.

Saladin called Godwin and Wulf to him that they might interpret for him, and gave them food, and they also ate who were compelled to it by hunger.

"Have you seen your cousin, the princess?" he said. "And how found you her?" he asked presently.

"Sire," said Godwin, "we found her sick with the sights and sounds of war and murder; shamed to know also that her uncle, the conquering sovereign of the east, had slaughtered 200 unarmed men."

"Wulf trembled at his words, but Saladin listened and showed no anger.

"Doubtless," he answered, "she thinks me cruel, and you also think me cruel—a despot who delights in the death of his enemies. Yet it is not so, for I desire peace and to save life, not to destroy it. It is you Christians who for hard upon a hundred years have drenched these sands with blood because you say that you wish to possess the land where your prophet lived and died more than eleven centuries ago. How many Saracens have you slain? Hundreds of thousands of them. Moreover, with you peace is no peace. Those orders that I destroyed tonight have broken it a score of times. Well, I will bear no more. Allah has given me and my army the victory, and I will take your cities and drive the Franks back into the sea. Let them seek their own lands and worship God there after their own fashion and leave the east in quiet."

"Now, Sir Godwin, tell these captives for me that tomorrow I send those of them who are unwounded to Damascus, there to await ransom while I besiege Jerusalem and the other Christian cities."

So Godwin rose and told them; afterward he asked: whether he and his brother were also to be sent to Damascus.

PACKING REPORT TO BE PUBLISHED

PRESIDENT FAVORS DRASTIC LAWS TO CORRECT EVILS.

TO SEND SPECIAL MESSAGE

Will Urge That Beveridge Amendment as It Stands in Bill Sent to House by Senate Be Passed.

Washington, June 2.—President Roosevelt decided Friday to make public the report of Prof. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, and James B. Reynolds, of New York, concerning the conditions of the meat packing establishments as they found them on an inquiry instituted by the president, primarily for his own information.

The report of Commissioner Neill and Mr. Reynolds will be sent to congress Monday. It will be accompanied by a special message of President Roosevelt in which he will take strong ground in favor of immediate and drastic legislation to correct the evils which are exposed in the report.

Sought to Protect Packers.
The president had not expected to make public the report of Commissioner Neill and Mr. Reynolds. He felt that its publication might injure the packing house industry in this country.

Primarily the information contained in the report was obtained to be used as a basis for the legislation proposed in the amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana. He did not imagine there would be serious opposition to a proposition to afford such inspection of such meats prepared for domestic consumption as is afforded to meat products intended for shipment abroad. The meat packers, however, rose in arms against the Beveridge amendment, being insistent in opposition to it not only in principle, but in the question of paying for the proposed inspection.

Wadsworth Turned Down.
Representative Wadsworth, of New York, called on the president Friday. He is the chairman of the agricultural committee of the house, to which the proposed amendment will be referred. He indicated to the president the intention of the committee to consider the amendment proposed by Senator Beveridge and adopted, practically without division, by the senate, and to prepare a substitute for it that would "be fair to all parties concerned."

Urges Beveridge Amendment.
The attitude of Mr. Wadsworth was not satisfactory to the president. In view of the facts reported to him by Mr. Neill and Mr. Reynolds, the president is of the opinion that immediate legislation of a drastic nature is necessary to cure the evils which have been developed. He decided, therefore to make public the Neill-Reynolds report, which has been presented to him in writing. He will send the report, which has been presented to him in writing. He will send the report to congress Monday, accompanying it with a special message urging, in strong terms, the enactment into law of the Beveridge amendment as it stands in the bill as it was sent to the house by the senate.

WIPES OUT DEBTS BY DEATH

Congressman Adams, of Pennsylvania, Ends Life by Shooting Bullet Into Mouth.

Washington, June 2.—Representative Robert Adams, of Philadelphia, died at the emergency hospital Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock from the effects of a self-inflicted bullet wound. A letter received by Speaker Cannon from Mr. Adams in the morning explained the cause of the suicide. Mr. Adams said in the letter that his debts exceeded his resources, and forced him to abandon his official position. While he did not indicate an intention to take his life, he spoke of the form of his burial, indicating that he had then made up his mind to commit the rash act.

DOINGS IN WORLD OF TRADE

DUN'S REVIEW REPORTS WHOLESOME SOME PROGRESS.

Encouraging Crop Bulletins from the Northwest to Restore Confidence
Among Merchants.

New York, June 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Business maintains wholesome progress and mercantile collections improve. The week's aggregate transactions show the effect of the holiday and seasonable quiet in certain lines, but a good gain is noted in comparison with the corresponding period of any previous year. Uncertainty regarding the crops caused unusual conservatism at the northwest until this week, when the outlook became sufficiently encouraging to restore confidence. In many jobbing lines there is no prospect of vigorous activity until fall, but wholesale distribution is now heavy and retail business is only retarded at points where temporary weather conditions are adverse. Little idle machinery is reported at manufacturing plants, except in a few cases of labor disputes, and several substantial increases in wages became effective on June 1.

Failures this week numbered 174 in the United States against 108 last year, and 13 in Canada compared with 29 a year ago.
Bradstreet's report follows: Rather quiet retail trade conditions have resulted from widespread rainy weather, the passing of the leading spring holiday, and the natural seasonal quietness which supervenes at this period. Taken as a whole, the month of May was a very active one in retail and wholesale trade and industry, in which the best records of preceding years were surpassed. Fall trade reports continue exceptionally good, though a comparatively quiet period may be looked for pending a clearer view of crop conditions. Crop reports are tinged with irregularity, due to uneven distribution of rainfall, which is, however, a seasonable development. Activity in outdoor work has been a feature, as for some time past.

SEEKS TO 'STARVE' MINERS

Coal Company Prevents Merchants from Delivering Groceries to Pium Run Strikers.

Steubenville, O., June 2.—Prosecuting Attorney Alban Friday dispatched Sheriff Vorhees to Pium Run to warn the United States Coal company against its action in preventing the strikers from receiving groceries.

Merchants of Smithfield who hauled groceries to the homes of the strikers which are on company houses are not allowed to deliver the goods. Armed guards lead the horses away from the living district and order the drivers to depart at the point of Winchester.

Prosecutor Alban pronounces such action an outrage and he advised the sheriff to order the company to desist or place enough deputy sheriffs on duty to carry everything to the strikers' homes except liquor.

The sheriff will appeal to the company to stop what the prosecutor terms an effort to starve out the strikers.

RACE WAR IS ON IN MEXICO

FORTY-FIVE MEN ARE KILLED AT CANANEA MINES.

Extermination of American Miners
Object of Natives, Working Under Cover of Strike.

El Paso, Tex., June 2.—The shooting of an American by a Mexican policeman precipitated a race war at the mines of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company in Mexico. Friday which has resulted in the killing of 45 men, and is still in progress with every indication of more serious trouble.

It is reported here that a majority of the dead are Americans. The mines at Cananea are controlled by Col. W. C. Greene, one of the men most bitterly assailed by "Tom" Lawson in his attack on the copper trust. There are about 2,000 Americans in the camp and nearly 20,000 Mexicans.

The extermination of the American miners is the avowed object of the Mexicans, who precipitated the trouble under the guise of a strike for higher wages. It is definitely known that two Americans were killed in the first clash, George A. Metcalf, superintendent of the lumber yards, and his brother.

Col. W. C. Greene has telegraphed to Col. Packard at Naco that at least 40 men were killed. American Consul Galbraith has wired the war department asking troops to be sent at once. The consul also has telegraphed to nearby towns this side of the border asking all available men be sent to the rescue.

Late Friday night a train crowded with women and children refugees reached the border. The refugees tell stories of carnage in the streets of Cananea and assert that a majority of the killed were Americans.

The American consul at Cananea has telegraphed to friends here informing them of his danger and saying that he has asked the authorities at Washington to send troops. An urgent appeal for troops was sent Friday afternoon to Fort Huachuca, Ariz. These cannot be sent, however, without instructions from Washington.

"ALL THAT GLITTERS" IS NOT —ADVERTISING!

It has been written that

"SOME BAD PEOPLE WOULD BE LESS DANGEROUS IF THEY HAD NOT SOME GOODNESS."

We are too apt to hope that the spendthrift is a "well-meaning" fellow—to excuse the indolent man by the fact that he is a "good-natured" chap—to pardon the reprobate because he is "good to his mother."

And to paraphrase the wise Frenchman above quoted:

SOME BAD ADVERTISING MEDIUMS WOULD BE LESS DANGEROUS IF THEY WERE WHOLLY WORTHLESS!

The business man who is "luke warm" about advertising—the man who likes to see his name on a bill-board, and calls it advertising—the man who thinks advertising might be all right for some people—the man who "prefers to waste his money in other ways"—all have used media of the questionable kind—the dodger, the poster, the placard, the programme, the newspaper of limited influence and circulation—none of them quite worthless, and none quite worthy!

A Telephone or call at the Gazette office will elicit complete information relative to a paying advertising campaign.
